

Engagement during audio-call

🕒 Created	@January 20, 2025 4:45 PM
🏷️ Tags

What is engagement?

Types of engagement during an audio call:

- Clarification — DOB, ex's name, the feelings of the user or another query when you need to know something new from the user.
- Offer — ritual, crystals, get insights from other areas of life and go into more depth of exploration the current field of the conversation
- Actions — the expert explains what he/she is going to do/check/use; takes the initiative, and doesn't wait for confirmation from the user.

When is it suitable to use which type of engagement?

The use of each type of engagement depends on the context of your response and the time frame in the conversation.

Context.

1. Rituals, remedies, or crystals should be provided through a suggestion because it is necessary to check whether the user is ready for them.
2. Changing a tool or checking aspects of a question that are obvious should be presented through an explanation of further action.
3. If the user is talking about someone else, it is appropriate to ask for a name and DOB so that further responses can be more personalized.

Timeframe

- Clarification — better not to use in the very beginning of the chat as can appear a bit irritating for the user (especially when a lot of clarification questions are used in a row) - while shuffling your cards, you can clarify

from the client their DOB though note that the more clarifications you ask in the very beginning of the chat, the higher is possibility the client leaves you sooner

- Offer — better to use during the first 5-10 minutes of the chat to show what kind of value the user can get from you and, of course, continue using during the whole chat to take the lead. It would be a wrong decision to offer a ritual in the first 3 minutes because the user's spiritualistic level and readiness for action are still unclear.
- Actions — can be used similar to offers though not in the very beginning of the chat as it can appear to the user as we are forcing them

Engagement rules during an audio call

Engagement during an audio call differs from engagement in a chat because you need to be more flexible in responding to the user.

For example, if an astrologer notices a change in the user's mood or anxiety, he or she can ask about the user's state of mind and make a suggestion for meditation or ritual to improve the user's experience. Even if the expert has prepared questions or clarifications.

During an audio call, you need to react when the user takes a pause after the engagement.

If the user doesn't respond to a question, it's better to clarify it, explain it, and not repeat it in the same way.

It is also necessary to explain why the expert needs this information from the user.

Active listening

Active listening can be a good engagement for the client as well. Sometimes they need to share about their lives, their feelings and situations, to get more ease on the heart. By actively listening to them, you can ensure them that the call with you is a safe place for exploration and openness.

1. Paraphrasing

- Client: "I feel stuck in my career, and I don't know if I'm on the right path."
- You: "It sounds like you're feeling unsure about whether your current career aligns with your purpose. Let's see what your chart reveals about this."

2. Reflecting Emotions

- Client: "It's been a really tough year for me emotionally."
- You: "It seems like you've been carrying a heavy emotional load. Let's look at what the planetary transits might be influencing and how you can navigate this."

3. Encouraging

- Client: "I'm not sure if I'll ever find the right partner."
- You: "That's an important concern. Let's explore your chart to see what your relationship energies indicate and how you can work with them."

4. Summarizing

- Client: "I want to know more about my financial future, but I'm also curious about my spiritual growth."
- You: "So, you'd like to understand both your financial path and your spiritual development. Let's examine these areas in your chart and how they connect."

5. Acknowledging

- Client: "I keep making the same mistakes in my decisions, and I don't know why."
- You: "I hear you—it can be frustrating to feel stuck in patterns. Let's look at your chart to uncover the underlying influences and how to break free."

Examples

▼ Lovelife

▼ Ex

1. Darling, let's see what he thinks of you now.
2. Darling, let me see how he will proceed.
3. Do you want to know his feelings, thoughts, and plans for you?
4. Dear, let me check if your ex was the one for you.
5. Do you know if your ex currently has a partner?

6. Darling, let me see, when will you have a chance to start communicating again and how will that happen?
7. I can ask cards the advice for you, would you like it, sweetheart?
8. Do you want to know about his core wounds that might influence your connection and ways to overcome them?
9. Honey, do you want to know what he's going through right now?

▼ Partners

1. Darling, let me see what qualities he most dislikes in you and your behavior.
2. Darling, do you want me to see how your relationship develops further and when everything will work out?
13. His thoughts are now in a different direction. Let me know what he's worried about right now.
 - a. Do you know what talisman will help open a love channel in your relationship? I can help you find the best one for you.
14. Do you want to know some pieces of advice that can improve your relationship with this person?
15. The cards are sending a message about the future you need to prepare for, are you open to this message?
16. Would you like me to check if there are good opportunities for you two to strengthen your connection in the future?
17. Honey, let me also see when you get married.
18. I can also check your compatibility in order to give you more insights into your connection. Would you like that?
19. I can see a huge change around the corner, particularly in your life as it is... Fancy what exactly?

▼ Career

1. Darling, I see that you have unique abilities that you can apply in your career! Would you like to know about it?
2. Darling, let me see in which areas it will be easiest for you to achieve success.

3. Should I check if there are any opportunities for your career?
4. I can check in which area you will become successful, should I do this?
5. Darling, let's also see what you need to change now to reach a new financial level.
6. Dear, the cards indicate to me that there is a person in your life who can help you become more successful. Do you want me to tell you more about this?

As a guider, your role doesn't end when the call concludes. Writing a thoughtful message to the client immediately after the session is a simple yet impactful practice that can strengthen your connection and increase the likelihood of the client returning for more insights.

Why a follow-up message matters

1. Reinforces the connection: A follow-up message shows that you care about the client's journey and are invested in their growth and clarity, even after the call.
2. Encourages further exploration: Highlighting additional tools or fields that can provide deeper insights encourages the client to continue their exploration with you as it shows a clear value of coming back into the chat.
3. Builds trust and loyalty: A well-crafted message leaves a positive impression and makes clients feel valued, increasing the chance they'll seek your guidance again.

What to include in the message

- Gratitude: Start by thanking the client for the session.
- Key takeaway: Briefly mention a key insight or moment from the call to personalize the message.
- Invitation to explore further: Suggest other areas or tools that can help them dive deeper into their questions.
- Encouragement to reach out: End with an invitation for the client to connect with you again.

Example:

"Thank you for our session today! I hope the insights we uncovered bring you clarity and peace. If you'd like, we can explore your relationship shifts that can come into the next month using the combination of numerology and tarot. Feel free to reach out anytime—your journey is full of possibilities!"

The impact of a simple gesture

This small but thoughtful follow-up creates a lasting impression, shows your dedication, and invites the client to continue their journey with you. By making this part of your practice, you not only strengthen your bond with clients but also open the door for meaningful, ongoing connections.